

Why We Shouldn't Have Homework!

My opinion on homework is that I don't want it and here's why. Okay we wake up at about 6:30 A.M. to get ready for school. At 7:35, we're at school working. Then about 3 hours later we get a 30 minute break for lunch. After lunch we go back to class for another 4 hours. So that means we're at school for about 7 hours doing work or learning for most of the time. After all, when school is finally done, we are really tired and then the teachers want us to do homework, HOMEWORK! I mean come on we spend 7 hours in school doing work then the teachers want us to do work at home. I mean it's one thing to not finish your school work and have to do it at home but it is another thing to have something that is meant to do at home.

Also, some homes can be really loud and you can't concentrate on it. There can also be people that can distract you and then it wouldn't get done. Also some people don't always have someone to help you at home. You might not also have the things to do it with. What if you get stuck on things and then no one can help him or her. Then the teacher has to help them and also take time out of the day to correct it.

A problem for me is when I get home I'm tired, I don't want to do work. Also my best estimate is that people don't always have time for it so they sometimes do really late at night or early in the morning. So by doing that makes them tired in class because they don't get enough sleep and they won't work as hard. Then teacher will get mad because their students are sleeping and not paying attention.

It doesn't benefit the teacher that much so, they really shouldn't give us nasty homework. So I think the second we get home till 7:00 A. M. we can do whatever we want. It's our time not the school's to tell us what to do with it.
